Narinder Dhami

"I always loved reading and writing stories. After leaving Birmingham University (where I obtained an English degree and also met my husband) I started teaching children aged 7-11. I entered a competition to write the first three chapters of a book and was placed second. My prize was a word processor, an Amstrad 9152(!) so I decided it was time I left my teaching job and started writing full-time. The first book I ever wrote was a short novel for younger children called A Medal for Malina. The book was accepted by the first publisher I sent it to, and I have never looked back. I've published around 200 books, including the novelisation of the 2002 movie Bend It Like Beckham and the Bindi Babes series. I have written many of the multi-million selling Rainbow Magic books for younger children, under the shared pseudonym of Daisy Meadows."

9.55 - 10.55

Ever dreamt of becoming a best-selling author? Haven't we all? But is it possible to sustain a full-time, well-paid career as an author without hitting the dizzy heights of winning the Carnegie Medal? Yes, it's possible because Narinder Dhami's done it! Come along and explore diverse and different ways of writing for children, and what we as authors are hoping to achieve with our stories.

TALK

DRAMATIC SCREENWRITING FOR THE YOUNGER AUDIENCE

9.55 - 10.55

Wycliffe Room

Jonathan Wolfman shares his extra-curricular top ten tips and insights for those interested in writing on-screen drama for older children and younger adults. Are fundamental screenwriting craft skills, an understanding of your audience and a great idea enough? What else do you need?

Prior to that he was script executive on Worst Witch series 2 and produced series 3, 4 and 5 of the BAFTA nominated Wolfblood for CBBC and ZDF, having been script editor on series 1 and 2. ## TALK

FREE RANGE PUBLISHING

11.00 - 12.00

Kempe Room

Submitting work to one of the giant publishing houses is only one option for a writer. The independent children's publishing sector offers another. Ruth Huddleston of Old Barn Books explains what independence can offer, its pluses and minuses, and tells the story of a book, from bright idea to bookshelf, as well as answering your burning questions about publishing and getting published.

PRACTICAL WORKSHOP

CREATIVE COLLAGE-MAKING FOR WRITERS.

11.00 - 12.00

Wycliffe Room

Collage-making is a brilliant technique for gaining information and insights into what you're writing and keeping things flowing. In this workshop, delivered many times to writers' organisations such as the Society of Authors and the Scattered Authors' Society, Jenny explains why it works, how it works, how to do it and how to use it. You'll also get a chance to try the technique for yourself.

"I often use Jenny's collage activity to explore the subconscious world of my stories. A great resource, and an inspiring writing teacher" ~ Lee Weatherly

Jenny Alexander

Jenny Alexander has written fiction and non-fiction for readers of all ages. Her children's fiction includes the Blue Peter Book Club choice How to Get What You Want, by Peony Pinker, and Red House Children's Book Awards Highly Commended Car-Mad Jack. Her funny self-help book, Bullies, Bigmouths and So-called Friends, is still consistently top in its Amazon categories ten years after publication, and her Young Adult novel about sibling suicide is recommended by Cruse Bereavement Care. Her adults' books include three for writers, covering different stages in the writing process. Jenny runs her own varied programme of evening courses, and workshops in Cornwall, as well as working for large organisations, including The Society of Authors, Bridging Arts, Writing Magazine, The Arvon Foundation and The Writing Retreat.

Pam Smy

Pam Smy has illustrated folktales, chapter books, nursery rhyme collections, picture books and novels, and has illustrated books for authors such as Siobhan Dowd, Linda Newbery, John Agard and Penelope Lively. Her first novel as both author and illustrator, Thornhill, was published by David Fickling Books in 2017, and was short listed for the Waterstones Children's Book Prize and the CILIP Greenaway Medal 2018. Pam has combined her career as an illustrator with teaching at undergraduate and post graduate level, and is passionate about sharing a love of drawing as a basis of research and exploration for the illustrator. She is a visiting lecturer on the MA in Children's Book Illustration at Cambridge School of Art and a founding member of Orange Beak Studio, along with illustrator Maisie Paradise Shearring and designer, Ness Wood.

TALK

WRITING FROM IMAGES

12.15 - 13.15

Kempe Room

Author and illustrator Pam Smy talks about how the ideas for, and development of, her novel, Thornhill, evolved through drawing and making. Character studies, observational research, drawing plans, model making and inspiration from books and exhibitions combine to explore this particular approach to story making.

WRITING FOR TWEENS

(9-14 yr olds)

12.15 - 13.15

Wycliffe Room

In this interactive workshop, Tamsin Winter will give advice on channelling your inner 'tweenager', as well as offering practical tips and guidance on themes, pacing, world-building, narrative voice, and navigating the potential plot-holes (and dilemmas!) thrown up by the internet and social media. Tamsin's session will give you a unique insight into writing for 21st century tweens.

Tamsin Winter

Tamsin Winter is a fresh, funny and moving voice for children aged 9-14. She grew up in a Northamptonshire village where she spent her childhood reading books and writing stories. She studied English Literature and Creative Writing at university, and has worked as an English teacher for many years. In 2015 Tamsin was a finalist of the Emirates Festival of Literature writing prize. Her award-winning debut novel, Being Miss Nobody, has been chosen as one of the Books of the Year by the Reading Agency, and was nominated for the Carnegie Medal. Her second novel, also aimed at young teenagers, will be published in 2019.

Anne Fine

Anne Fine is a distinguished writer for both adults and children. Her novel Goggle-Eyes won the Guardian Children's Fiction Prize as well as Britain's most coveted award for children's literature, The Carnegie Medal. She won the Carnegie Medal again for Flour Babies, which also won the Whitbread Children's Book of the Year Award. In 1990 and again in 1993 she was voted Publishing News' Children's Author of the Year. Adaptations of her work have been screened by the BBC and her novel Madame Doubtfire was adapted for film under the title Mrs Doubtfire. Having written over fifty books for children of all ages, Anne Fine became Children's Laureate in 2001 and during her two years of office set up the Home Library, where you can download free modern bookplates, and published three classic anthologies of poetry for different age groups, called A Shame to Miss 1, 2 & 3. In 2003 she became a Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature and was awarded an OBE.

TALK

WHAT I WISH I'D KNOWN FROM THE START

14.15 - 15.15

Kempe Room

Anne Fine will look back over a career of over forty years and share what she's learned about mistakes that needn't be made, ways to put in the hours, and how to deal with both triumph and disaster. She'll talk about her belief that a writer must settle on aims, and work in ways, that suit his or her own personality, rather than following general advice about writing and publishing. She'll answer the questions she gets asked most often, and invite those who are present to ask more.

12

PANEL DISCUSSION

FROM PAGE TO SCREEN AND BACK AGAIN

15.20 - 16.20

Kempe Room

What happens when your book gets adapted for film or TV? Or when you're asked to write the novelisation of a popular movie? Guest speakers with experience of adapting or being adapted share their insights, horror stories and anecdotes.

Non Pratt

After several years working as an editor in children's publishing, Non became a full-time author when her debut YA novel, Trouble, was released in 2014. She has written two further novels Remix, Truth or Dare and two novellas Unboxed and Second Best Friend, all of which focus on teen characters getting up to all the things Non wanted to do at that age (but didn't). She has collaborated with six other UK authors to create Floored and adapt John Allison's hit comic series Giant Days into a novel.

YOU CAN'T TAKE THE EDITOR OUT OF THE AUTHOR...

15.20 - 16.20
Wycliffe Room

Editing one's own work is an essential skill for a writer. With a decade of experience as an editor in children's publishing before becoming published herself, Non Pratt discusses her experience working on both sides of the desk and how knowing how to edit other writers taught her how to edit herself. Sort of...

AGENT AND PUBLISHER ONE TO ONE SESSIONS

11.00 - 12.00 Felicity Trew
13.15 - 14.15 Felicity Trew
Bishop's Room

13.15 - 14.15 Ruth Huddlestane
Wycliffe Room

Literary agent Felicity Trew and publisher Ruth Huddleston will be offering a small number of ten minute one to one sessions, in which they will give feedback on your writing and pointers about what you might need to do next to improve your chances of getting an agent and being published.

Places are limited, so we will be allocating them via application. Everyone who attends Wolves & Apples 2018 will be sent details of how to apply. The closing date for the initial round of places is 15th September. A second round of allocations will take place for people who book after that date.

Felicity Trew

Felicity Trew is keenly building up a list of children's writers and illustrators at the Caroline Sheldon Literary Agency. Dream projects to arrive on her desk would be: a spellbinding novel of our time, a bold UK teen voice, an accessible, well-plotted (and don't hold back on the funny!) middle grade book, and a picture book classic of the future à la The Tiger Who Came to Tea.
